As the summer draws to a close, it is now time to refocus our efforts toward move in schedules, professional staff training and student training! This is one of the most exciting times of the year to welcome back our students and kick off a new semester with a bang! Start planning your training sessions early and don't be afraid to make a fool of yourself with a fun/unusual theme. The students are looking toward you now and it is your time to shine! Feel free to use our resources to spread ideas and good luck with this new academic year!

What Happens on Campus...

It was an honor to have some of our "Lead On!" professionals highlighted in this month's Book Club. What Happens on Campus Stays on YouTube is a perfect selection for a summer reading novel for incoming college students. Too often than not, our students go to social media to vent their frustrations, voice their thoughts, and communicate with the world around them. With this being said, there is not much training provided to our students to teach them how to properly brand themselves online, consider the consequences of their posts, and know how to properly utilize the internet as a tool to obtain future employment and stay out of trouble. Qualman and the supporting authors do an excellent job teaching these points through stories, online resources, and chapter summaries/tests. The formatting of the book was very easy to follow and the graphics made the book a fun read.

We would highly recommend this book!

Lead On! Stephanie Newton

Luminstruct was pleased to announce Stephanie Newton as this month's Lead On! Spotlight Leader! Stephanie has travelled the world and has worked many exciting jobs including work with Disney, training giraffes, and is currently in New Zealand! Find her story in our Lead On! Section.
